Well, I’m echoing the President’s claims. Indications of grossly improper conduct from election officials right here in my district.

And Trump’s points are persuasive: concerted use of fraudulent polls; stunning and implausible ballot dumps overnight; observers barred.

Fight!

“In the 2020 election, the national Democratic Party carried out a highly coordinated, massively financed, nationwide campaign to displace state regulation of absentee ballots by means of a flood of election-year litigation. This effort was designed to overwhelm the judicial system and disrupt the administration of the election,” said Rep. Bishop. “In support of the effort, Democrats’ national litigation leaders employed unethical procedural jockeying, including forum shopping, repetitive suits and collusive settlements with cooperating Democrat officials, state and local. The Democrats’ objectives were to weaken ballot security, undermine positive identification of voters, and provide opportunities for post-election ballot-box stuffing. This has been a national, partisan attack on the Constitutional delegation of authority to regulate elections specifically to state legislatures.

Tomorrow, January 6, 2021, Congress will meet for the count of the electoral vote for President of the United States. Because the Democrats’ campaign of litigation has tainted some states’ elections, I will join in objections to those states’ electors. I consider this to be an obligation of utmost gravity, predicated on my oath to defend the Constitution, and I hope that the controversy at hand will lead to restoring the administration of elections as the Constitution envisions,” concluded Bishop.

Democrats’ attack on our elections was not minor or sporadic. It was coordinated & widespread.

The burden of proof is on the Democrats in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Michigan & Georgia. I will be not be voting to affirm Presidential election results in those states.

Here’s some more detail on why I will be objecting to the vote counts in GA, MI, PA and WI.

1:54 PM - Jan 6, 2021 - Twitter for iPad

Congressman Dan Bishop @jdanbishop - Jan 6

Replying to @jdanbishop

Democrats laid out a plan to attack our election laws to give them an advantage in their FIRST bill of last Congress, H.R. 1.

They executed this attack for over a YEAR and even bragged about it.

Democrats mounted a nationwide assault by litigation. Many believe that outright fraud and misconduct changed the outcome of the 2020 presidential election. These issues remain subject to investigation and analysis.

On the other hand, the scope and intensity of the Democrats’ election-year litigation campaign is not subject to dispute. The Democrats’ national elections lawyer, Marc Elias, details the effort state-by-state at the website democracydocket.com.

Congressman Dan Bishop @jdanbishop - Jan 6

These changes had nothing to do with COVID-19, other than the pandemic provided Dems the opportunity to execute their will.

Contrary to conventional wisdom, this was not a response to COVID-19. It was an election-year strategy. In January 2020, before COVID entered public consciousness, Elias identified the prototype for the litigation tsunami to come: a 2018 suit attacking Florida’s absentee ballot signature-matching law. (We Are Not Counting Every Vote | Democracy Docket) See also Democratic Exec. Comm. of Fla. v. Lee, 915 F.3d 1312 (11th Cir. 2019).

Congressman Dan Bishop @jdanbishop - Jan 6

As 2020 unfolded, Democrats attacked election laws passed by state legislatures in state after state. They tried to overwhelm the system by using forum shopping, repetitive suits and collusive settlements. All to take away YOUR vote and get Dems elected.

Congressman Dan Bishop @jdanbishop - Jan 6

In my state, North Carolina, judges were SHOCKED by the departure from traditional processes, with one saying:

Let’s understand the strategy that is being deployed here… Our country is now plagued with a proliferation of pre-election litigation that creates confusion and turmoil and that threatens to undermine public confidence in the federal courts, state agencies, and the elections themselves.
Congressman Dan Bishop • @jdanbishop • Jan 6

Here’s more from the dissenters:

“avalanche of partisan and destabilizing litigation enacted against election rules duly enacted by state legislatures,” these dissenters observed, was a deliberate attack on the Constitution. Alarmèd, they exhorted the appellants to seek relief in the Supreme Court “immediately. Not tomorrow. Not the next day. Now.” Id. at 106.

Congressman Dan Bishop • @jdanbishop • Jan 6

Did the Supreme Court Act immediately? NO. Did they restore fair elections ahead of November 3rd? NO.

We were left with election laws that RESOUNDINGLY favored Dems.

Congressman Dan Bishop • @jdanbishop • Jan 6

In light of this coordinated attack, I am objecting to the states where Democrats were successful at swinging the margins toward their candidates. The burden falls on THEM to prove otherwise.

Finally, some have asked the justification for not objecting to electors’ states from all the other states in which Democrat litigation pressure led to Electors Clause violations, including North Carolina. The answer is that in some of the states, including North Carolina, Democrats failed. The Electors Clause violations they procured did not change the outcome of the election in their favor. In others, the Democrat victory margin is too large to have resulted from the Electors Clause violation. But in the states I have selected, the violation was plausibly outcome determinative, and it is fair to assign Democrats the burden to prove that it was not.

Congressman Dan Bishop • @jdanbishop • Jan 6

I swore an oath to uphold the Constitution and this effort by Dems was an all-out assault on it.

I OBJECT.

Today, my colleagues & I sent a letter to @TheJusticeDept demanding to know what AG Barr "is doing to ensure the integrity of the voting and counting process." #CountEveryLegalVote

The Honorable William Barr
Attorney General U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20530

Dear Attorney General Barr,

While each state runs its own election process, the United States Department of Justice is ultimately responsible for the integrity of federal elections. The American people must have the utmost confidence that the outcome of the presidential election is legitimate.

With widespread reports of irregularities, particularly in the vote counting process, it is time for you to use the resources of the Department to ensure that the process is conducted in a manner that is fully consistent with state and federal law. And, it is also important that the process be completely transparent, so that the American people will have full confidence in the result.

The Justice Department’s Civil Rights Division Voting Section’s responsibility is to ensure that the right to vote is sacred. This not only means access to the ballot box, but it also means ensuring that no one’s vote is devalued by any means of voter fraud.

The U.S. Marshals Service is also available to ensure that judicial orders are carried out. When it comes to a federal election, it should not matter whether those judicial orders come from a state or federal court. For example, if a state court orders that observers can watch ballot counting in a federal election, no local election official should be able to defy that order.

With that in mind, we request an immediate response to the following questions. What are you doing to ensure the integrity of the voting and counting process right now? Will you commit to using all the resources at your disposal to ensure that only legal votes are being counted and being counted in a fully transparent manner immediately?

Thank you for your prompt reply.

Josh Hawley

Millions of voters concerned about election integrity deserve to be heard. I will object on January 6 on their behalf.

Hawley Statement On Objecting During Electoral College Certification Process:

“Following both the 2004 and 2016 elections, Democrats in Congress objected during certification of electoral votes in order to raise concerns about election integrity. They were praised by Democratic leadership and the media when they did. And they were entitled to do that. But now those of us concerned about the integrity of this election are entitled to do the same.

“I cannot vote to certify the electoral college results on January 6 without raising the fact that some states, particularly Pennsylvania, failed to follow their own state election laws. I cannot vote to certify without pointing out the unprecedented effort of mega corporations including Facebook and Twitter, to interfere in this election, in support of Joe Biden. At least, Congress should investigate allegations of voter fraud and adopt measures to secure the integrity of our elections. But Congress has so far failed to act.

“For these reasons, I will follow the same practice Democrat members of Congress have in the past and object during the certification process on January 6 to raise these critical issues.”
A cause that began with just a few of us has grown into a strong team that will fight for election integrity on January 6th.

12:56 PM · Jan 7, 2021 · Twitter Web App

"When I was able to return to my office, I resolved not to let a violent mob stop me from giving voice to the thousands of North Carolinians who demanded a debate on the irregularities and Constitutional violations in the presidential election. Going through the Constitutional process of debate was never about overturning an election, it was about standing up for the integrity of each and every citizen's vote. That issue transcends any one candidate or election. The American people deserve to know without a doubt that their votes, our electoral system, and the choosing of our public officials is fair and accountable. That is why I objected. At around 1:40am, I returned to the House rostrum and delivered my objection to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania."
At a moment that calls for calm and peace, Democrats are again ratcheting up the political volume through an impeachment with just one week left in the president's term.

We need to move on & focus on the needs of the American people. I'm voting no.

"First, I want to make clear again that the mob violence that took place at the Capitol on January 6th was unacceptable and wrong. Anyone who participated in the incident, no matter their political affiliation, who broke laws, destroyed or stole federal property, or harmed Capitol officials and police officers should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. I support a full investigation into the events that took place that day.

"Unfortunately, at a moment that calls for calm and peace, House Democrats are again ratcheting up the political volume through an impeachment with just one week left in the president's term. A move like this will do nothing other than further inflate tensions and divide our country. If President-elect Biden and Democrats are serious about national unity, then they should end these political tactics and focus on the needs of the American people."

@RepCawthorn

What does it mean to fight? Let me tell you the direction I choose.

Read my statement against impeachment below:

I’m committed to continuing President Trump’s goal of draining the swamp means draining it of pandering and the fertile soil of freedom. If we want our politics to be stronger, we need to have a strong community of supporters who are committed to the principles of our party. During my convention speech, I said we’re in the midst of an information war and that it’s our responsibility to change that. We need liberals to be liberal, conservatives to offer better solutions and win the argument. I ran for Congress in a district where you don’t have to apologize for your beliefs. You can kneel before God, but stand for our flag. At its core, it stands for a nation that resolves to govern itself and whom have had peaceful transfers of power for our entire history. It’s the enduring example of the world and strikes fear in the hearts of tyrants. The Revolutionary War will not go quietly in the night. We have celebrated last week’s events: Make no mistake, America exceptional.

12:41 PM · Jan 13, 2021 · Twitter for iPhone

Now, I don’t apologize for fighting for election integrity. I objected to the electoral votes not in support of a president, but in support of my oath to uphold the Constitution. Left uncorrected, there were irregularities that could affect the outcome of future elections in our closely divided country. I understand that principled conservatives cast a different vote and believe it’s important that we respect each other’s motivations. I’m committed to reapplying Reagan’s wise counsel that the person who agrees with me 80 percent of the time is not my 20 percent enemy but my 80 percent friend. I haven’t been in office long, but I’ve learned that the easiest thing to do in politics is tell people what they want to hear. Cicero figured that out 2,000 years ago when he said, “men prefer a false promise to a flat refusal.” Our supporters deserve better than that. False promises are abusive to the voters we represent and corrosive to American democracy. As conservatives, we don’t need to offer false hope when the truth is our ally.

American's must link arms and press forward as one people. It's time to forsake partisan politicking and work for people, not party. Read my thoughts as we celebrate Martin Luther King Jr. Day:

From the Office of Representative Cawthorn
11th District of North Carolina
Statement on Martin Luther King Jr. Day

Today, as we celebrate Martin Luther King Jr. day, I think it is important that we focus on an epidemic that has been gripping our nation. This is not an epidemic of disease, rather it is one of hatred and anger. This summer, for months, violent fringe elements of the left laid siege to American cities across the country. Their violent acts ought to have been denounced and dealt with by both parties. On January 6th, violent thugs stormed our Capitol and besieged the seat of our democracy, their violence must be denounced as well. MLK understood this revolving door of violence and anger when he said, "hate begets hate; violence begets violence."

On this day, as we celebrate his legacy, I call for all Americans to earnestly consider how we can end this cycle. I pray that we can follow the teachings of a carpenter in Israel, who urged us to love our neighbors as ourselves. What unites us is greater than what divides us, it is time we remembered that.
There is nothing more anti-democratic than attempting to drive from office the peoples' elected representatives.

Democrats, in my district, sent a letter to Pelosi begging for me to resign.

Representative Madison Cawthorn
January 26 at 8:18 AM

Office of Representative Cawthorn Statement on Election Integrity:

There is some fake news circulating recently that Rep. Cawthorn backed down on the issue of election integrity. Nothing could be further from the truth. Congressman Cawthorn was one of the first Republicans to call out the clear constitutional violations that took place in the 2020 presidential election, and he stands by his decision.

Rep. Cawthorn firmly believes that election laws were violated in 6 key swing states by Democrat election commissions. He recently addressed this issue on CNN where the host asked him to point out the number of fraudulent ballots in the election. Congressman Cawthorn's argument has always been a constitutional one that does not rely on proving just how many illegal ballots were cast. But, for the sake of the argument, let's break down the state of Wisconsin, using only stipulated facts agreed to by both Democrat and Republican lawyers:

The Constitution gives authority solely to state legislatures for determining time, place, and manner of elections. In Wisconsin, election law establishes only three means of collecting absentee ballots: through the mail, in person, and in alternate absentee ballot sites.

In April of 2020, Wisconsin's Democrat Governor tried to push through a new method of voting, ballot drop boxes. His order was denied by the State Legislature of Wisconsin.

Then, just weeks before absentee balloting began, the unelected Wisconsin Elections Commission ignored the direction of their state legislature and approved these ballot drop boxes in public parks, referring to them as "Democracy in the Park" events.

According to Democrat legal counsel, and in facts stipulated by a federal court opinion, across the state, unelected "volunteers" stood on street corners and in public parks collecting absentee ballots from voters and tossing them into literal duffel bags. What did these unsupervised, unelected, and unreliable ballot gatherers call themselves? "Human Drop Boxes." I call them Ballot Harvesters, and so does the Wisconsin State Legislature.

What was the rationale given for so flagrantly violating the Constitution? Surely violating the clear legal rule of the Wisconsin State Legislature required some commission, some legal adjustment or perhaps a court ruling? Sadly not.
The City Clerk of Madison came up with the idea of illegal ballot drop boxing while walking her dog in the park... That's it. That's not a disputed fact by either party, but what it is, is a bastardization of democracy that reeks of corruption. If only Rep. Cawthorn had known that City Clerks had the legal authority to override state legislatures, he may have run for a different office.

In response to this brutal dismemberment of state law by a city clerk enabled by her Democrat handlers, members of the Wisconsin State Legislature issued a cease-and-desist letter telling them that they were breaking the law. Did this unelected, electoral, oligarchy obey? Far from it. No, Wisconsin’s Election Commission doubled down.

Democrat city clerks began harvesting absentee ballots through “human drop boxes” as early as September 26th and October 3rd in violation of state election law. Democrats prohibited special voting deputies from helping the elderly fill out their absentee ballots in direct violation of the Wisconsin Election Code. Democrats instructed voters that they should apply to be an “indefinitely confined” voter so that they would not have to go through “the trouble” of showing ID.

The Wisconsin Election Code and our Constitution are not some series of suggestions that can be ignored or rewritten on a whim. They are the law. And it is because I refused to sit by and watch this American Empire crumble, that I objected on January 6th.

In Milwaukee and Madison alone, over 91,000 ballots were illegally harvested through “human drop boxes.”

In Milwaukee and Dane Counties, 5,517 incomplete and inaccurate ballots were tampered with by Democrat election officials and then illegally counted. 170,140 illegal absentee ballots were cast and counted without a written absentee ballot application.

The margin of difference is 20,000.

This isn't about conspiracy, this isn't about a coup, this is about the Constitution. If we let unelected officials ignore the rule of law today, they will subvert our elections tomorrow. We must take a stand. On January 7th Rep. Cawthorn took that stand, and would do it again.

This week, I will object to certifying the Electoral College votes of certain states that violated their own election laws, contrary to Article II of the Constitution. Ready my full statement here:

In accordance with the 12th Amendment, Congress will meet in a joint session on January 6th to count Electoral College votes...

The American people need to have confidence in the integrity of our election process. Currently, millions of people do not trust the outcome of this presidential election because there is incontestable evidence of voter irregularity— if not outright fraud—in multiple states. Furthermore, election laws were changed in numerous states contrary to Article II of the Constitution. These election changes included extending the deadline for mail-in ballots, adding unsecured drop box collection sites, and changes to signature verification measures—processes that are susceptible to increased fraud as spelled out by a bipartisan commission on election reform co-chaired by former President Jimmy Carter.

I am also concerned about the impact big tech bias and censorship had on this election. From unprecedented suppression of information like the New York Post’s story on the Bidens' financial ties to foreign governments, to arbitrary ‘flags’ on individual posts and ideas, big tech companies engaged in dangerous efforts to interfere in this election that must be addressed. The latest example is Facebook disabling the account of the Republican joint fundraising committee for the Georgia Senate special election.

This evening I sent a letter requesting AG Bill Barr prosecute anyone who is found guilty of alleged voter fraud to the fullest extent of the law.

You can read my letter below:

Lawsuits have been filed by the current Administration against a multitude of states, including Pennsylvania, Nevada, Georgia, and Michigan. All four of these states are critical in assessing the accurate results of the electoral college. Cases of fraud include vote-buying schemes, voter impersonation, voter intimidation, counting late or fake votes, and the illegal throwing away of ballots.

As the fate of our nation dangles before each citizen, we must write that these concerns are urgent and require immediate assistance. Please use your office to enact proper oversight of any election fraud nationwide and hold those who commit illegal activity responsible. Winning an election fairly is paramount and we must prevent forms of cheating while making it possible for legitimate and legal voters to get their vote counted in an orderly fashion.
Yesterday, AG Bill Barr directed the DOJ to investigate any "substantial allegations" of voter fraud. On Thursday, I wrote to him requesting he prosecute alleged voter fraud to the fullest extent of the law. We must ensure every legal vote is counted.
Democrats deny they are implicated in voter fraud, yet they’re instructing people to move to vote in the upcoming Georgia Senate races. They will do anything to win at all costs.

In some instances, this could be a felony.

The media has largely misrepresented the House GOP Amicus Brief in the Texas SCOTUS case. Please read the great detailed explanation written by my colleague @RepMikeJohnson below.

I saw countless misleading reports last night in the mainstream media about our brief and its intentions. They apparently didn’t take the time to actually READ the brief, but you can (at the link below) and see that our argument is very simple and very important:

Article II, Sec. 1, cl. 2 of the U.S. Constitution clearly states that Presidential Electors must be appointed according to rules established by each state’s LEGISLATURE. But in the months before the 2020 election, those rules were deliberately changed in the Defendant states, not by their LEGISLATURES, but by governors, secretaries of state, election officials, judges and/or private parties.

Our amicus brief does one single thing: It respectfully requests that the Supreme Court uphold the clear authority of the state legislatures to establish the manner by which electors are appointed, and determine the constitutional validity of any ballots cast under rules and procedures established by actors or public bodies other than state legislatures.

Why is that so important?

Because our constitutional republic has endured for nearly two and a half centuries based on the consent of the governed. That consent is grounded in the confidence of our people in the legitimacy of our institutions of government. Among our most fundamental institutions is the system of free and fair elections that we rely upon, and any erosion in that foundation jeopardizes the stability of our republic.

To restore the confidence of all Americans that the rule of law will be upheld today--and our elections in the future will be secured--we believe the Supreme Court must review and adjudicate these important issues.

Murphy Objecting to Electoral College Certification
Washington, D.C. – Congressman Greg Murphy, M.D. (NC-03) will object to certain Electoral College votes ... gregmurphy.house.gov

“When I was sworn into the U.S. House of Representatives, I took an oath to defend the Constitution. Contrary to what many in the mainstream media would have you believe, this is not about a person, but rather about upholding the Constitution. It very clearly states in Article II Section 1 that state legislatures are charged with writing election laws, not executive officials and judges. Unfortunately multiple states, some more egregiously than others, violated that section of the Constitution. Whether objecting would change the outcome is not the question that must be addressed. It is rather, did certain states follow their constitutional duties in how they chose electors? I believe the answer is ‘no’. Unless we solve this problem now by objecting and calling into question the irregularities in the process this year, it will call into question the integrity of every election this nation faces moving forward. The fact that executive officials and judges in several states usurped the legislative power to rewrite election law from thin air is at best troubling and at worst seditious. It is clear these issues warrant further scrutiny,” concluded Murphy.

That usurpation of the legislatures’ sole authority, delegated by the Constitution, was a primary reason why the election of 2020 became riddled with an unprecedented number of serious allegations of fraud and irregularities. National polls indicate a large percentage of Americans now have serious doubts about not just the outcome of the current presidential contest, but also the future reliability of our election system itself. We share these grave concerns. However, as it pertains to our constitutional duty as Members of Congress on January 6, we have no express authority or ability to independently prove the many allegations of fraud in the subject states.

Here’s how this must work in our great country: Every legal vote should be counted. Any illegally-submitted ballots must not. All sides must get to observe the process. And the courts are here to apply the laws & resolve disputes.

That's how Americans' votes decide the result.

No one questions that every legal vote should be counted. Transparency is critical to ensuring integrity of the vote. Each state has its own laws governing the election process, if late ballots can be submitted, etc. In Georgia, for example, absentee ballots mailed in do not require any sort of voter identification; Election Day ballots and Early Vote ballots do. The Secretary of State in Georgia has announced that a recount will be forthcoming.

House Republicans are calling for transparency and supporting the Trump campaign and the Republican National Committee in their efforts on the ground in each of the key contested states. There is a legal process to resolve these issues and that process is ongoing.
Here’s an update regarding the ongoing election disputes in the states in question. The Trump Campaign continues to utilize every avenue available to attempt to ensure that every legal vote is counted and every illegal or corrupted vote is discounted. The campaign is confident that once this is the case, President Trump will have proven to be the winner. Recently, a contract truck driver for the USPS spoke of driving a load of 24 pallets of ballots from New York to Pennsylvania weeks before Election Day. The driver says he doesn’t vote and is just reporting what took place. If true, this irregularity along with many others lead any sensible person to the conclusion that fraud was significant in these cities run by Democrats. The question is can the campaign and other groups investigating produce enough evidence to convince the courts and the respective state legislatures that these irregularities were enough to change the outcome of the vote in these respective states.

Currently, the campaign is continuing to pursuing a two-track process: one within the judicial system, and the other with the state legislatures of the various states at question. The US Constitution makes it very clear that state legislatures have the ultimate authority to determine their state’s Electoral College electors.

As of this writing, President Trump’s campaign has five ongoing lawsuits in the states in question. These suits seek to delay the certification of the results until a full and complete investigation and any subsequent litigation can take place.

The campaign has gathered hundreds of affidavits from poll workers, elections officials and others in the states it is contesting alleging impropriety or corruption in the vote-counting process. The Trump Campaign contends that in each of these states, thousands of ballots have been irreparably tainted by illegality and the outcome should instead be decided by the states’ legislatures.

The campaign is encouraging these legislatures to take steps to appoint electors in a manner as they see fit and act to reform their election and vote-counting procedures to prevent these kinds of catastrophic failures from happening again.

I do not know what the outcome of any of the Trump campaign’s litigation or efforts to bring forward witnesses to highlight fraud before these state legislatures will be, but any range of outcomes is possible. Stay tuned for future updates as the situation continues to evolve.

In the meantime, let’s make sure our two Republican Senators win their elections in Georgia! If you’d like to help go to GAbattleground.com to contribute or sign up to volunteer. Who controls the U.S. Senate is on the line.

Here's a quick update on the latest with the Trump Campaign's efforts to ensure every legal vote is counted and every illegal vote is discarded in last month's presidential election. The campaign continues to pursue the legal and legislative avenues available to it. There are many others who are filing their own lawsuits in these respective states as well.

The campaign filed suit in Georgia late last week, with a detailed complaint that alleges tens of thousands of votes were counted in contradiction of Georgia law. It claims, for example, more than 66,000 votes cast by underage individuals were counted, and as many as 10,315 individuals who were deceased on Election Day were permitted to vote. A hearing on this case has not yet been scheduled.

More significantly, earlier this week the state of Texas filed suit against Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin, claiming the four states exploited the COVID-19 outbreak to justify ignoring their own election laws and illegally enacting last-minute changes to their election processes, thus skewing the results of the presidential election.

Because the Constitution gives “original jurisdiction” of lawsuits between the states to the Supreme Court, the suit will bypass the district and appellate court levels and go straight to the nation's highest court for review. It may well be that this case is the last, best opportunity for the Court to step in and intervene. The Court has given the states named in the suit until Thursday afternoon to respond to Texas' complaint. Many of us in the House are filing an amicus brief with the Supreme Court in support of the Texas lawsuit.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected the lawsuit filed by Congressman Mike Kelly of Pennsylvania alleging the state law passed in 2019 authorizing universal mail-in voting violated the state constitution. The Pa. Supreme Court rejected this lawsuit, and it then was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

It's important to note that the Electoral College meets December 14th. Even then, there is precedent for states to continue to work to resolve issues with their elections right up until the moment Congress tallies the votes in January. I expect the legal challenges and efforts to address election fraud in these respective state legislatures to continue to play out until then.
Confidence in our system of government is of utmost importance. Nearly half the country has lost confidence in our election system so the question becomes, what can we do to help restore it? More on two actions I've taken this week: facebook.com/RepRouzer/post...
Confidence in our system of government is of utmost importance. Nearly half the country has lost confidence in our election system so the question becomes, what can we do to help restore it? Truth is paramount and to help determine that and make clear for all to see, there have been two major actions taken this week involving members of Congress:

1.) Many of us in the House filed an amicus (meaning friend of the court) brief that asks the US Supreme Court to answer a critically important constitutional question. The brief does not suggest any specific remedy or what the outcome should be. It is a simple question with regard to the language in the Constitution:

As my friend, colleague, and constitutional lawyer, Mike Johnson (R-La), has stated, Article II, Sec. 1, cl. 2 of the U.S. Constitution clearly states that Presidential Electors must be appointed according to rules established by each state’s legislature. However, in the months before the 2020 election, those rules were deliberately changed in the Defendant states, not by their legislatures, but by governors, secretaries of state, election officials, judges and/or private parties.

The brief requests that the Supreme Court uphold the clear authority of the state legislatures to establish the manner by which electors are appointed, and determine the constitutional validity of any ballots cast under rules and procedures established by actors or public bodies other than state legislatures.

This is important because our constitutional republic has endured for nearly two and a half centuries based on the consent of the governed. That consent is grounded in the confidence of the people in the legitimacy of our institutions of government. It is impossible for the American people to have confidence in the legitimacy of their government without confidence in a system of free and fair elections.

Whether you believe the election was fair and square or suspect, it is my belief this is an important question that needs to be adjudicated by the highest court in the land so that confidence can begin to be restored.

2.) I was among 27 members of Congress who signed a letter asking the Attorney General to appoint a special counsel to investigate all credible accusations of fraud. Every citizen of this country deserves to know the truth about what happened. Appointment of an objective special counsel is the only way I know to help ensure that whatever the truth is, it will have an opportunity to be fully revealed. Our system of self-government is badly damaged if half the country believes this election was stolen at worst, or suspect at best. Truth, whatever it reveals, is the only way to restore confidence.
Why I Will Be Objecting to Electoral Votes Cast by Certain States on January 6th:

Confidence in a presidential election has never been lower, with 39 percent of the country in a recent Reuters poll believing this election was “rigged.” There are just too many aspects of concern, too many irregularities and clear violations of the U.S. Constitution by several of the states in question, which is why so many instinctively have little confidence that the presidential election was fair. When more than a third of the American public believe this election was stolen, transparency and truth argue for their opportunity to be heard. I agree the voters of each state should decide. But that is the very point. How do we know legitimate voters actually decided it?

The American people need clarity that this election was fair and truly reflective of the will of the people. Unfortunately, the electoral and judicial processes so far have not provided for a thorough vetting. Congress is the last forum for the arguments to be heard in the short-term. It is not seditious to follow the Constitution, the law, and the process laid out by the Electoral College Act. I recognize that there are others who read the Constitution and the law who come to a different conclusion — that the role of Congress should always be very limited with no question of the certified votes of a respective state. I respect their viewpoint, but disagree. Our Founders argued over such foundational issues as well.

In the joint session of Congress today, we will vote to sustain objections to slates of electors submitted by states we believe clearly violated the Constitution in the presidential election of 2020. I hear from so many who say, “I don’t know who or what to trust anymore.” Trust is foundational for any civilized society — and for a representative democracy in particular. When people lose trust in our institutions of government, everything begins to break down. Mob rule and chaos fill the vacuum.

Distrust is why 39 percent of this country believe the election was “rigged” according to a recent Reuters poll, including 17 percent of Democrats. Some say that is because President Trump has said it was rigged. I have no doubt that there are those who think that because he has said it. But there are also many very smart, independent minded voters who have instinctively come to that conclusion on their own.

The objections made on January 6 were on solid constitutional grounds and deserve to be known and understood. Unfortunately, the tragic events of that day obscured this constitutional point so central to election integrity.
This is the second time in three years I have seen political violence firsthand. Republicans and Democrats alike must have the moral clarity to call out violent rhetoric whenever it's spoken, not just when it's politically convenient.

Congress will be greeting a new President while conducting a trial of the former. It’s the most divisive way possible to begin a new presidency and a new Congress at a time when healing is needed most.
